- Question 2 of 12
- Current Question Time: 3m 18s
- Question Palette: Shows numbered boxes 1 through 12, with box 2 highlighted in red.
- Question Text: What is the primary distinction between `export const MyFunction = () => {}` and `export default function MyFunction() {}` in terms of how they are utilized in other modules?
- Correct Answer: The 'export const' form is for class components, while 'export default' is for functional components.
- Incorrect Answer: 'export const' creates a named export requiring curly braces for import, while 'export default' creates a default export that can be imported without curly braces.
- Feedback: There is no functional difference; they are just different syntax options for the same outcome.
